in case you've never noticed, all things fall into an order. that order may not always be apparent, but there is always a method to the madness.

last spring, just after having published allen verbatim, a book based on his travels with allen ginsberg, gordon ball shared his unusual experiences with those who came to hear him.

john barth, known for such works as the floating opera, the end of the road, giles goat-boy and the sot-weed factor visited the st. andrews community last spring.

last spring's jargon festival brought to st. andrews the entertaining personalities of jonathan williams and vodka's greatest fan, fielding dawson. williams is best known around st. andrews for his collection of poetry an ear in bartram's tree. dawson is best known for his valiant attempts to be better known.

mary de rachewiltz came to st. andrews last spring not to promote herself, but her father ezra pound. she was the first of the yearly speakers on pound, hopefully beginning a tradition that will thrive at st. andrews.

the lamp and shield staff would like to apologize for the delay in the production of this book. Even though it is late some people have worked very hard and deserve some credit. the photography was primarily done by billy "man of steel" howard and kim mcrae. lisa wollman and vernon alford also contributed a number of photographs. yvonne mason put together the theatre section and along with suzanne hogg, they did the class sections. terry winborne helped out in many ways and whatever is left over was done by susan mann.
